

WELDIN RUINS RETAINING WALL

The retaining wall at the Weldin Plantation was developed to protect and enable interpretation of the ruins in conjunction with the Blue Ball improvements.

Perspective View of Weldin Plantation Ruins

- Two-wall tiered retaining wall.
- The curved rear wall (adjacent to ruins) functions as a retaining wall and a privacy screen.
- The curved front wall (adjacent to Rt.141) functions solely as a mask and provides a terraced planting area between the walls.
- Stone masonry facing will be incorporated into wall faces and will be topped with architectural capstones.
- Details of the interpretation of the ruins are still in development.
